

Öhlins Racing develops and produces shock absorbers, steering dampers and front forks for motorcycles, cars and snow mobiles. The company is market leader in advanced suspension for vehicles and has worked with in this area for over 30 years. The company is the leading supplier to the racing industry with over 200 different World Championships. The main office is situated in UpplandsVäsby, just outside Stockholm, Sweden.

Öhlins Asia Co. Ltd, is now looking for an Technical Specialist in Thailand

Main Responsibilities

In this position you are responsible for the laboratory and the work shop. This includes being responsible for the technical equipment and to manage the service department, technical support and also race support

You will support the engineers with measuring and test of vehicles and parts. You will also build prototypes and samples as masters or test material. Furthermore, you support the quality department with test and analysis, including analysis of claims. Technical support to the production department including fixtures, set up and machine work. You will also manage and develop the technicians, 1-6 persons, and also give race and technical support to marketing.

In this position you report to General Manager Engineering and to CEO.

Education & background

You have direct experience of mechanical work and preferable experience from MC or automotive industry. You also need experience in people management.

We are looking for a flexible and hands on person, who can easily adapt to a high energy team in a rapidly developing organization. You must be able to write and speak English fluently and preferable also Thai.

You are committed and able to work under pressure and to meet deadlines. You are detailed and organized and good record keeping. For this position you need to be self-managed, disciplined, good people skill and culturally tolerant.

Apply or contact us for further information

If you would like further information about the job please contact by email. We look forward to receiving your application, CV and relevant certificates on email: hr.asia@ohlins.com